

Speech-Language Pathology Assistant (SLPA) Information

Who is Quantum looking for?

Individuals with an associate or bachelor's degree in Communication Sciences and Disorders who want to gain practical knowledge and skills through hands-on clinical experiences.

What does an SLPA do?

- Follow treatment plans developed by a supervising SLP-CCC
- Implement speech and language strategies to help meet student/client goals
- Collect data and document session information

How does Quantum support SLPAs?

Foundations Training – Virtual instruction provided by a CCC-SLP covering essential information and technical strategies for articulation and phonology, language and literacy, voice, fluency, pragmatics, and ethics.

Mentorship – Quantum SLPAs are paired with an experienced mentor to provide regular support, direct observation of sessions with real-time feedback, and to help to troubleshoot problems, answer questions, and collaborate.

Quantum University – A monthly virtual training led by Quantum leadership staff on specialized topics like “Behavioral Strategies to Address the 4 Functions of Behavior” and “Multicultural Competency.” Knowledgeable professionals from a variety of related fields are invited to guest speak at these events.

Have questions or ready to apply?

Schedule a call with Frankie Ferretti, M.S., CCC-SLP, using the QR code or by visiting www.calendly.com/frankieaa.

Frankie has worked as an SLPA and is passionate about mentoring and helping others gain confidence in their speech pathology skills.

Visit us at www.quantumedpro.com

